Free Form domed roof for the 800-seat auditorium in Carnal Hall

Free Form wooden elements function as an intermediary between the stainless steel roof and the steel construction beneath. The roof elements in the interior of the building were assembled with finished surfaces. Our services also included the interface to the standing seam (double-curved, prefabricated roof cladding), including the assembly profiles for the stainless steel panels. The roof surface measures approx. 3,800 m².
